

Your guide to understanding access codes

Choose the right type of access for the job by understanding the key differences and flexibility that's secure and trackable.

Access codes are a useful tool that provides different options for authorized users and third-party individuals to easily access properties, even without cell service.

One-day codes

A one-day code allows access to the key compartment of one of your lockboxes for a limited period of time, after which the code is no longer valid.

This code is ideal for use by out-of-area agents, homeowners and contractors who need access to a property but are not SentiLock members.

One-day codes are generated by you (the lockbox owner) in the SentiKey® Real Estate app and assigned by you to a lockbox. When you create a one-day code, it is active for the rest of that day only, or you can make the code active for a full day up to 2 weeks in advance.

FlexCodes®

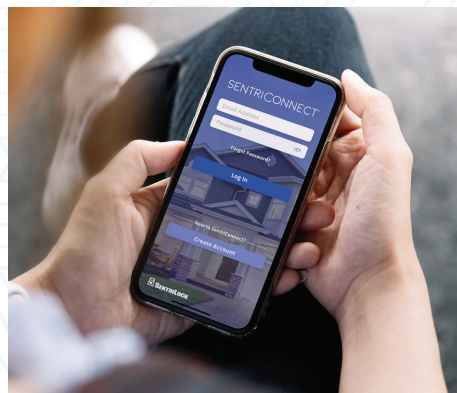

Each assigned code is logged and tracked in the lockbox for future review. Generated codes are instantly available on the lockbox and expire automatically, so you can “set it and forget it.”

Manual access

Allows users to manually enter the access code into the keypad on the front of the lockbox.

Timed access

Grant access from 30 minutes to 30 days, and up to 30 days ahead for SentiGuard® lockboxes; ideal for showings or extended access.

SentiConnect®

Provides temporary, secure access to properties for non-members like contractors, painters and other third-party individuals, ensuring safety and convenience for everyone involved.

Bluetooth access

A user or third party downloads the free SentiConnect app to access the lockbox via Bluetooth.

Timed access

Grant third-party access for as little as 30 minutes for a showing or up to 14 days for affiliate or contractor access.

Instant notifications

Bluetooth connection provides instant notifications when the access occurs.

Revoke access

Ability to revoke unwanted or unused access. For example, if a contractor was granted 10-day access but finished in 8 days, the remaining 2 days can be revoked.
